

ABSTRACT

Ramadany, Yasmin. 2022. The Use of Problem Based Learning for Encouraging Students to Speak English. Undergraduate Thesis. S1 English Education Study Program. Faculty of Teacher Training and Education. Universitas Nahdlatul Ulama Surabaya.

The research focuses on the use of problem based learning for encouraging Students to Speak English, this study will focus on the use of problem based learning for encouraging students to Speak English especially fluency on VIII B students at one of the private Junior High School in Sumenep. The method used is the descriptive qualitative research method. The data in this study will be obtained through interviews and observation. The results showed that the students to speak English was good. Most of the students are good at fluency and are enthusiastic about students speaking English in presenting solutions to some problems given by the teacher. The Use of Problem-Based Learning for Encouraging Students to Speak English can be seen from the results of interviews and observations which state that students' fluency in English is encouraging.

Keywords: Problem Based Learning, Speaking, Qualitative.